FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Crawford Technologies Forms Strategic Partnership With Document Sciences

TORONTO, Ontario – April 7, 2003 – Crawford Technologies Inc., (CrawfordTech) an industry leading provider of print-stream processing software, today announced that they have signed a cooperative marketing agreement with Document Sciences Corporation, a proven leader and innovator in automating creation and delivery of enterprise business communications.

Under the terms of the agreement, Document Sciences will provide CrawfordTech's print-stream solutions to customers interested in migrating from current legacy systems to Document Sciences' content processing solutions. CrawfordTech's conversion solutions will enable Document Sciences' customers to easily integrate new printer and communications technology, without the need to modify existing applications.

“CrawfordTech's commitment to innovation and product development will help Document Sciences' customers to achieve even greater productivity,” said Jack McGannon, President and CEO of Document Sciences. “CrawfordTech's print-stream software will help our customers further leverage their enterprise IT investments, reducing total cost of ownership in existing systems and applications, while speeding time to market.”

“Document Sciences is an ideal partner for CrawfordTech, and will help us bring our print stream processing solutions to a broader market,” said Jay M. Pollitt, Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Crawford Technologies, Inc. “We are pleased to partner with Document Sciences and we look forward to delivering conversion solutions to their customers around the world.”
